

Private Mediation Brochure

One-page print brochure

A constructive place to begin

Professional Support. Neutral Resolution.

When a disagreement becomes difficult to discuss, a structured conversation may help. Merchlinsky Paralegal and Mediation Services offers private facilitative mediation, subject to conflicts, competence and suitability review.

Explore practical possibilities

Neighbor and community concerns, consumer or service disagreements, small-business payment disputes and workplace communication issues may be considered. Acceptance depends on the particular circumstances. No settlement or result is guaranteed.

You remain the decision maker

John J. Merchlinsky III serves as an impartial mediator. He helps organize discussion and explore options without advocating for either participant. You can ask for time, obtain independent legal advice or decline a proposal.

How it begins

1. Provide names and a general topic for screening.
2. Discuss suitability and participation needs privately.
3. Review written scope, confidentiality and fees.
4. Meet in the agreed format to explore possible resolution.

Clear expectations

Confidentiality is subject to Pennsylvania law and stated exceptions. Court and legal deadlines continue. This service does not provide legal advice, settlement drafting as legal counsel, or court representation. Court custody and other specialized services are outside this general offering.

Email: jmerchlinsky@merchlinskyp.onice.io

Website: _____

Central Pennsylvania | Remote arrangements considered where appropriate

Fees are agreed in advance and depend on the complexity of the project. The scope and fee arrangement are confirmed in writing before work begins.

Merchlinsky Paralegal and Mediation Services is not a law firm. John J. Merchlinsky III is not an attorney and does not provide legal advice or legal representation.